FIGHTING TIMES.

Schoolteacher and Councilman in a Tussie.

Prominent Business Men in Savannah Gather Each Other in the Hair—Other News.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—At the meeting of the city council this evening, the election of the principal of Houghton Institute was held. This is a school supported by the city and governed by the council. Professor J. Cuthbert Sheat, who has held the position of principal for twenty years, had antagonized certain elements in the first ward, where the school is situated, and the opposition backed Rev. Dr. Martens, pastor of the English Lutheran church. There were four ballots, the first three resulting in a tie and the fourth in the election of Dr. Martens by one vote. There was a right sharp debate over the matter before the ballot was taken and Councilman O'Connor, in his remarks in detailing certain grievances against Professor Sheat's administration, charged that Mrs. Sheat had opened a letter addressed to Professor Sheat and commented upon her conduct in doing so. Professor Sheat asked permission of council to make a few remarks and resented sharply the action of council, in bringing his wife's name into the public meeting, and declared the charge of Councilman O'Connor entirely false in every particular. Mr. O'Connor started toward him, but both gentlemen were called to order and peremptorily directed to take their seats by Mayor May. When the meeting adjourned, Professor Sheat and Councilman O'Connor met outside, and after a few hasty words, began striking at each other with their canes. Lieutenant Hood, of the police force, who had heard the alteration in the council chamber, anticipated a difficulty, and followed them out. He rushed between them and received the injuries in the difficulty, getting a severe blow across the head from Councilman O'Connor's cane. Both were required to pledge themselves to keep the peace. The affair created quite a sensation, and the defeat of Professor Sheat, after his long connection with the school, is generally regarded.

FIST AND SKULL.

Two Business Men of Savannah Get Into a MHI.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—For some time past bad feeling has existed between J. S. Collins of S. C. Collins & Co., and Samuel K. Platshak, over some transactions in relation to the business of the Equitable Loan association. Mutual cirmunitions ensued, and the estrangement assumed a decidedly bitter aspect. The broker, who seems to have had entire charge of the stock of the company, expressed the opinion quite often that certain changes in the board of managers would prove beneficial. This soon reached the principal agent, who is a member of the board, and, accepting it as a reflection upon his business integrity, he began to threaten physical reprisals upon what he considered as his defamer. They met this morning, in front of McDonald's Co's office, and after a few words, both parties threatened to shoot the broker. Upon the latter replying that two could always play at that game, Collins raised his umbrella and struck Platshak across the face. The blood spurted from Platshak's mouth, and though he at once fled, he plumped his arm under the upraised weapon, and sent the commission merchant to the ground. When they arose the two hugged each other in an affectionately embrace, and strangled along in mutual embraces of reconciliation. Over a half hundred lawyers, brokers, merchants and politicians soon surrounded the combatants, while a score of boys cheered each on to victory. A moment later the broker clasped his master's head under the arm, an exultant position in which to make his victory work. Instead of taking advantage of it, however, he called to W. H. Bailey to separate them. The president of the baseball league and Constable Sibach gallantly came to the rescue and broke up the mill, much to the chagrin of the bystanders.

THE GAINESVILLE BAPTISTS.

Summing Up the Year's Work in the Church.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—Rev. William Henry Strickland, pastor of Gainesville Baptist church, preached his first anniversary sermon yesterday. Among other things he spoke of the church's work in missions and in healthy condition. The pastor's salary was paid in full, $120 had been given to missions, $500 spent in church improvements, while the question of a parsonage is discussed now and then. By discipline and revision of church rules he has made his church a more active work. Instead of taking advantage of it, however, he called to W. H. Bailey to separate them. The president of the baseball league and Constable Sibach gallantly came to the rescue and broke up the mill, much to the chagrin of the bystanders.

THE DALTON REUNION.

The Town Swarming with Former Citizens.

DALTON, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—"Harras" has been heard from Mr. Charles A. Hart, who is in the reunion, and has made the first train on the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad. The bands have come, and everything starts out promisingly. Messrs. Lewis, Hart and Walker, of Knoxville; E. C. Leyden, of Dalton; Mr. W. H. Davis, Tibbs, Lofton, Carpenter, Baker, Wingfield, Fisher and others, Chattanooga; Russell, Purden and others, from Rome; Miss Rustin, Savannah; Miss Trammell, Marietta; Misses Lewis, Hart and Walker, of Knoxville; Mrs. Mrs. Alexander of Rome; Mr. and Mrs. Douglass and Messrs. Loveman, Birmingham; Miss Ross, Anniston; Miss Fahn and Holtzman, Chattanooga; Miss Felker, Little Rock; Messrs. Carter and Carter, and Trammell; Mr. and Mrs. May, Mrs. M. E. George, Moules, Colson, Trammell, and others, Atlanta. The Texas boys will arrive today. Ed. Calaway is expected Wednesday with a red bandana. Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Horne, at Captain Price Horne's. Tomorrow (Tuesday) the band will be at the park, followed by Prof. Schleser's concert at night, will formally open the reunion.

CONSOLIDATING THE VOTE.

The Recent Primary at Columbus—Who Were Elected.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—The democratic executive committee met at noon today to consolidate the vote cast at the primary election Saturday. The result is the result for senator: W. O. Johnson, 70,000; Thomas, 55,000. For representatives: G. Y. Tigner, 738; S. P. Gilbert, 726; W. J. David, 629; H. C. Jones, 511. The Collier friends gave a banquet at their home to their captain, which lasted from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock, and consisted in recitations, declamations, tableaux and dramatic pieces, which greatly delighted the audience, and added much credit to the accomplished lady who presided over the school. The first prize for declamation was won by Master Martin Rogers; the second by Master Watts Alfred, and these were given a hearty round of applause. Miss Neppie Hunt is a great favorite with our people, who applaud her efforts to maintain a first-class school.

THE ROTATION PLAN.

To be Discussed in an Augusta Mass Meeting.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock the state delegation will be held to elect delegates to the gubernatorial convention and the eighteenth district senatorial convention. Gordon delegates will be elected to the former, and it is predicted that the delegates to the senatorial convention will be elected to a resolution of the rotation system as now observed in the district. Richmond county has three representatives in the legislature, Jefferson two and Glasscock one, and it is proposed to have the two former and the one from Glasscock as delegates to the gubernatorial convention, which they will awaken a healthy, enthusiastic desire among our people to get up a representative of our varied resources, which display themselves in Augusta if it is desired after the State has been won. Fairs and expositions are good advertising mediums and should be taken advantage of.

The negroes buried her without notifying the coroner. The poor heard of the death this morning, impaled a jury and had the body taken up and examined. The verdict was that death was produced by natural causes.

In the Interest of the Rome Exposition.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—Messrs. T. D. Dean and Ross, of Rome, are here to lay the plans of the Rome exposition. The ball will meet the public at noon next Saturday at 11 o'clock, and it is to be hoped that they will awaken a healthy, enthusiastic desire among our people to get up a representative of our varied resources, which display themselves in Augusta if it is desired after the State has been won. Fairs and expositions are good advertising mediums and should be taken advantage of.

A Good Sermon.

MARSHALL, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—At a meeting of the board of directors of First National Bank held Saturday, June 30th, twenty-five hundred dollars of its earnings for past six months was carried to surplus fund. This makes a very creditable and satisfactory showing for the first six months business of our new bank.

Death of A. T. Wilder.

ALBANY, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—A. T. Wilder died yesterday, aged thirty-five years. He was buried this afternoon with funeral and military honors.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hasty eating is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

GORDON INSTITUTE.

The Sixteenth Annual Commencement Exercises.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., July 2.—[Special.]—At 11 o'clock Sunday morning the chapel was filled to overflowing to hear the commencement sermon preached by Rev. W. W. Wadsworth, presiding elder of the north Atlanta district.

His discourse was different from the average commencement sermon and was full of force and evinced deep and careful study. He clearly demonstrated that he was not attempting to make a literary address, but, "as it was his day," was preaching the doctrine of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Never has such a large congregation gathered in Gordon Institute chapel to hear such a grand and glorious sermon. He has endeared himself to all that had the pleasure of hearing him.

Rev. H. H. Park, presiding elder of the Griffin district, preached Sunday night at the Methodist church.

The Greatest Holiday of the Year.

The reunion of the confederate veterans to-morrow on the Piedmont Chautauqua grounds at Salt Springs, will be one of the greatest events of the year. To-morrow is a holiday—the “glorious Fourth,” and everybody will feel like taking a day off from the cares of business; they will rest a desire to get away from the city’s hot and dusty streets, and spend their holiday in the woods.

At the Piedmont Chautauqua the confederate veterans will be assembled in full force. There will be some unique attractions. The old-time music—the old war songs will ring through the shady groves, and there will be a monster barbecue. Our people will turn out by thousands. They cannot afford to miss such an occasion. It comes but once in a lifetime.

Aside from the rare pleasure of a perfect day amidst such surroundings, it is in the largest and best sense a matter of duty to join our veterans in their holiday. They are trying to establish a retreat for their disabled comrades and we must help them.

It will cost comparatively nothing for a man to go and take his family. The Georgia Pacific will run trains every two hours, and thus make it convenient to go and return at any time.

If any of our citizens propose to remain in the city to-morrow—a very doubtful supposition—they should at least buy tickets to the reunion, and in this way help the veterans in their noble and charitable work.

But the best thing will be to obey the common impulse, and that is to make a dash for the Chautauqua, and spend the day fanned by cool breezes, listening to glorious music and the murmur of running streams. Let everybody turn out and enjoy the most delightful Fourth that has been seen since the war!

With the retirement of Perry Belmont from congress our foreign affairs and relations will probably go to the dogs.

Patriotic Enemies.

The recent advance in coffee was not caused by the scarcity of that article. The sudden jump of sixty per cent in one day was not due to anything in the present supply or the crop outlook. It was the result of a scheme or conspiracy organized and carried through by a few heartless and unscrupulous speculators who richly deserve a severe punishment for their dishonest methods.

It is in the power of rings and combinations to raise the price of the common necessities of life, solely for speculative purposes, it is time for the people to wake up. In comparative recent times men have been strung up to the lamp posts for just such devilry, and it may be that history will repeat itself in our day.

Doubtless some of these coffee speculators are clever fellows in the eyes of the world—generous to their friends and good to their families, giddy men in the estimation of their fellow church members, but they are all the same public enemies, a curse to the land that bore them, a pack of reckless gamblers, and robbers of the poor.

The people of this country have never endured oppression long. Sooner or later they have always found a remedy. They will not submit much longer to the speculators who are stripping and starving them. One of these days they will put their enemies in the penitentiary, or get rid of them in a summary way.

Mr. CLEVELAND, having had a taste of genuine Georgia watermelon, probably feels better now.

Brother Blaine's Advice.

During the session of the republican convention at Chicago, the Blaine men, as is well known, used every effort to bring about a condition of things that would lead to the unanimous and spontaneous nomination of their candidate. They succeeded in bringing the convention to a deadlock and in this state it remained until Saturday night.

Sunday was the 24th of June, and early in that day Brother Blaine sent a telegram from the hotel of the Carnegie coach, in which he advised his friends in the convention to respect his wishes. This was a very smart telegram, but it was made a good deal smarter by a brief postscript which, out of abundant caution, Brother Blaine added. The postscript was to this effect: “Private. Use wisely.”

The Blaine boomers used the telegram as wisely as they could—so wisely that they suppressed it entirely until they discovered on Monday that Brother Blaine was a dead duck. Then, with a great flourish of trumpets, they produced the telegram, together with a supplementary one, in which it was more than intimated that their grapes were not good for the stomach.

Thus it is that Brother Blaine cannot lift his hand without displaying the species of cunning that over-reaches and exposes itself. He now proposes to be a perfect under a man who will never be elected.

AFTER Blaine, Foraker most faithfully represents the spirit of republican meanness. He should have been nominated at Chicago. However, his time will come. The democrats will have the pleasure of whipping the republicans in mass and in detail.

The Man with the Red Wagon.

While this is undoubtedly a reunited country, there is a good deal of diversity about it.

Methods regarded as legitimate in one section in some instances will not be tolerated in other sections. This was signalized the other day in Memphis.

One McAllister, a Chicago man, established himself in Memphis as a bill collector. His mode of operating was to drive up in front of a house in a red wagon on which was printed in large letters: “Debtors and Deadbeats.”

In the course of a few days the red wagon began to stir up the citizens. McAllister was stubborn. He boasted that he would “teach the d—d southerners how to collect debts.” Finally his wagon paid a visit to an insurance agent named Wilkerson. The next day Wilkerson tackled McAllister with a knife, and the latter, after drawing a pistol, fled to his house, where he was surrounded by a crowd yelling: “Lynch him, kill him!”

The police interfered and McAllister and Wilkerson were carried to the police court. The judge fined both parties, and then said: “Mr. McAllister, that red wagon business is hereby interdicted. I will say that we have good courts and good deputy sheriffs in Memphis who can collect all bills. I want you to distinctly understand that your wagon will not be allowed in this city. I think this decision is in accordance with the city ordinances, but if it is not I shall stop your scheme just the same.”

When the crowd in the court room heard this they set up a shout of applause that nearly took the roof off. McAllister went to jail in default of bail.

Now, this is not a southern outrage. It is simply a legal indorsement of our time-honored methods of doing business, and a protest against the disorderly and lawless methods which a stranger from another section was trying to force upon the people. The Memphis judge did his duty.

In our notice of the completion of the work on the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad we omitted to mention one of the important men who deserve much credit for the success of the enterprise, Mr. F. H. Harris, the chief engineer. He certainly made reputation enough not to deserve this censure. There is no better general in the country than Mr. Harris.

Now is the time to act, and the country demands that something be done. The people are tired of the dilly-dallying which characterizes the consideration of the Mills bill, and the democracy will be held responsible if something is not done.

The nomination of Harrison has put the republican party on the defensive from the jump. Nobody seems to be for him but the Chinese and the Blaine boomers.

“You were dead against Pickett’s charge?”

“Yes, Sah.”

Colonel Longstreet was asked many ex-confederates would attend the reunion. He thought that about 300 would soon be here. Would Jubal A. Early be here? General Longstreet stroked his side-whiskers thoughtfully as a smile appeared at the corners of his mouth. Finally he said: “I don’t think Early will come.”

“He was present at the great re-union in 1865,” said the colonel.

“I might not have counted 25 years ago as it did,” said a man who was a Grand Army brother.

“It might have ended differently, Sah,” replied Longstreet. “If my advice had been taken on the first day or the third.”

“Yes, Sah.”

Colonel Longstreet was asked many ex-confederates would attend the reunion. He thought that about 300 would soon be here. Would Jubal A. Early be here? General Longstreet stroked his side-whiskers thoughtfully as a smile appeared at the corners of his mouth. Finally he said: “I don’t think Early will come.”

“He was present at the great re-union in 1865,” said the colonel.

“I might not have counted 25 years ago as it did,” said a man who was a Grand Army brother.

“It might have ended differently, Sah,” replied Longstreet. “If my advice had been taken on the first day or the third.”

“Yes, Sah.”
